The San Francisco Earthquake.

The earthquake which wrecked San Francisco last week was a record breaker in the matter of the property loss involved, though many have exceeded it in loss of life. The property loss is figured at approximately $250,000,000, the city being practically wiped off the map by earthquake and the fire which followed in its wake. For several days there was suffering for food and water, but supplies have been rushed in, and the waterworks system has been repaired to a considerable extent, so that hunger and thirst have been eliminated from the problems to be met.

The promptness and liberality with which people have responded to the call of distress emphasizes the fact that men are growing nearer together, and that misfortune is the magic talisman which demonstrates the brotherhood of man. Responses came at once from every part of the country, and in a few hours after the extent of the disaster was known trainloads of supplies were speeding toward the stricken city. The government at Washington has appropriated $2,000,000, and the total aid so far as reported aggregates a almost a hundred millions, including donations from foreign countries even.

The indomitable courage of the people of the western metropolis is shown in the fact that before the smoke had cleared away plans were being evolved for the rebuilding of a greater and more beautiful San Francisco. Indeed, the one bright spot in this awful catastrophe lies in the opportunity afforded to profit by past mistakes, and improve upon past blunders.

Relief work is now under way, military supervision has been somewhat relaxed, and order is being brought out of chaos. The insurance companies have announced their intention to pay all losses without regard to the technical cause, whether by earthquake, by fire, or by dynamite used in blowing up buildings in the vain attempt to stay the ravages of the fire. However, the people of the city have lost all, and there will be need for a long time for the exercise of charity. It should appeal to right-minded people as both a privilege and a duty to help according to their ability. The Republican will gladly take charge of and forward whatever may be contributed. The list has been started, as will be seen elsewhere. It is hoped it can be made a long one. Do not hesitate because the amount you can give is small. Any amount will help, and prove your heart to be in the right place.

Missouri fruit-growers in every county ought to organize for mutual advantage. There is nothing like such organization to stimulate to well-directed effort, and certainly well-directed effort in the fruit industry in Missouri holds great possibilities.

Springfield's mayor indicates his approval of mob law by going on the bonds of men arrested for complicity in the recent barbarous incident in that city.

H. F. Davis has sold the Ozark Tribune to H. A. Clay, who makes several fine promises. It is now up to him to make good.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

Fresh Democratic Discard.

A frequent Democratic remark is that some of the Republican leaders are working over to Democratic ground, but when this assertion is made a diagram should be furnished. The Republicans know of nothing in their national platforms that they wish to discard, and no one can tell anything about the Democratic position on new issues. On Wednesday the Democratic senators held a caucus and as a first step advised, an agreement on the rate bill that all could support. That was as far as the road to harmony as they could get. Everything definite was rejected as fast as proposed, and instead of a settlement of difficulties, fresh ones cropped out. The adjournment of the caucus was without date for another trial, and apparently without hope of getting together.

The country is ready to hear the particulars of the position of the Democratic senators on rate legislation, but as they are themselves unable to give them, the necessary conclusion is that they are in a chaotic state of mind on this subject as on many others. Before charging Republicans with a shift to Democratic ground, locate the ground and get at least two Democratic senators to agree on taking it for a party stand. Senator Bailey of Texas has one rate plan, Senator Culberson of Texas has another, and the variations are as numerous as the individual members. A Democratic congressional caucus in this time has all the peaceful concord of a bear garden.

Appropos of the knock made by many who ought to know better to the effect that the young man has no chance to rise, it should be recalled to mind that every trade, business and profession is full of men who began life poor, wish-out friends and influence, and have worked upwards through their own indomitable courage, industry and persistence. The knockers and croakers are men lacking in the elements which command success, and they blame conditions for that which is their own fault or misfortune. There was never greater demand for the young man of character, ability and skill than at this time—character, ability and skill are constantly counting for more and more, and influence or "pull" for less and less. The world is in need of men who know how, and is not at all concerned as to pedigree. The young man of ability and integrity could never before declare as truthfully as now, "The world is my oyster." Let him make adequate preparation, acquire accurate knowledge or skill in his proposed calling, and he will find little trouble in opening his oyster.

The time is coming, and is not far distant, when electricity will do the bulk of the heavy work of southwest Missouri. No person who realizes the dormant power of White river and its tributaries can doubt this. It may be delayed by mistaken opposition, but it cannot be defeated. And in this consummation this section will only be keeping step with the progress of the world, it being recognized by men of profound knowledge of the trend of things industrial that the work of the world is soon to be done by this same agency. With proper effort the Ozark region may lead the world procession instead of merely falling in as the line moves past.

Some Things Not in the Catalogues.

When the catalogue comes from your mail order house, draw an easy chair to the table where the light will shine full upon the page, and put on your glasses that no bargains may escape your eye.

What a wonderful book it is, to be sure! Wonderful for what it does. You will miss some things you would be glad to see.

Where is their offer to pay cash or exchange goods for your wheat, oats, corn, beans, butter, eggs, and hay?

How much do they pay for cattle, sheep, and hogs, f. o. b. at your depot?

How much tax will they pay to support your schools and educate your children, for improving roads and bridges, the support of the poor of the county, for the expense of the township, county and state?

On what page is their offer to contribute money to the church?

What line of credit will they extend to you, when your crops are poor and money gone, when, through illness or misfortune, you are not able to send "cash with order" for your groceries, clothing, farm tools and crockery? Also, stoves and ranges.

Where is their offer to contribute to your entertainment next year? What did they do last year?

In short, will they do anything to provide a market for what you have to sell and thereby keep up the value of your estate? Will they do anything for social, church, school or government support, or do they take your dollar out of the community with no returns except the goods you buy?

Think this over carefully, then call on your local dealer, where you can see and examine the goods before you buy them, and by comparison of prices and quality you will see that you can do as well or better at home, and you keep the money at home, thereby helping to build up your local town.

Uncle Zeke and the Campaign Fund.

A political campaign in Indiana always involves strenuous use of one's think-tank, but few have used it to better purpose than the hero of the following story:

In a small Indiana town there is an officer designated as inspector of streets and roadways, who receives the munificent salary of $250 per year, there was a lively campaign for this small plum not long ago, no other elections being near. The Democratic candidate was an old fellow by the name of Ezekiel Hicks, and it looked as though he would be successful as a neat little sum had been subscribed and turned over to him as a campaign fund. To the astonishment of everybody, however, he was defeated. "I can't account for it," one of the Democratic candidates said gloomily. "With that money we should have won. How did you lay it out Ezekiel?" "Hum," Ezekiel said, slowly pulling his whisker, "yer see, that office only pays $250 a year salary an' I didn't see no sense in payin' $900 out to get the office, so I just bought me a little truck farm instead."

Doesn't Explain.

Walter Williams, of Missouri, whose right to speak for his party in that state is not questioned in any quarter, insists that the Democracy in its next national platform shall declare for free trade pure and simple. That is what the party stands for, but it has been concealing its designs under the terms of "tariff reform," reciprocity in competitive products and the like. Mr. Williams is in favor of discarding these disguises and coming out boldly on the tariff issue. He neglects to explain, however, in the event a free trade policy was entered upon by the Government, how it would raise the revenue necessary to meet the expenses of government. Just let the Democratic party adopt a plan of direct taxation if it wants to get itself thoroughly disliked.—Keokuk "Gate City."

The Broader-Minded View.

The importers of foreign merchandise are divided in sentiment as to the tariff. Some of them would, if possible, take the tariff entirely off the goods in which they are interested. They lose sight of a very important factor of their profit, the consuming power of the American people. Every man who is employed at good wages in this country contributes more or less to the profits of importers, if not directly, through the purchases of the goods himself, indirectly through the distribution of the wages he earns. Every reduction of tariff reduces the earning power of the American laborer and reduces the market of the importer as well as the home manufacturer. The broader minded among importers pay the tariff freely, feeling that it more than comes back to them through the greater market thereby created through the general prosperity of the country. When labor is best employed and money most in circulation the higher prices of imported goods due to the tariff are easier paid than the lower prices at which free importations can be sold under the depressed conditions that always accompany a low tariff schedule. It makes little difference how low the price of an article may be if the people have not the money with which to buy it.—Pana (Ill.) "News".

A Sudden Death.

At 3 o'clock Sunday evening Eunice M., daughter of J. D. and Estella Blankenship, was playing around the home, seemingly in excellent health. At 6 o'clock she had passed over the river, to him who said, "suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not." Little Eunice was 3 years, 5 months and 9 days old. The doctors pronounced her death to be due to a congestive chill. The internment took place in the cemetery at Kisco Mills, where an appropriate service was conducted by parson Edmondson. The sorrowing family has the earnest sympathy of many friends in this hour of sore trial. Let them not forget that "After the night cometh the morning," and that their loved one will meet them on a happier shore.
